Tenth Session of the UN Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues
UNITAR Statement delivered by Trisha Riedy, Manager
Programme in Peacemaking and Conflict Prevention

Thank you. UNITAR is pleased to participate in this tenth session of the UN Permanent Forum and looks forward to continuing collaboration with the new and ongoing Expert Members.

The UNITAR Training Programme to Enhance the Conflict Prevention and Peacemaking Capacities of Indigenous Peoples' Representatives was created in 2000 based on the requests of indigenous representatives for strengthened capacities in the resolution of conflict, and on the recommendation of UN Special Rapporteurs to enhance indigenous abilities to engage in negotiation and the realization of rights. The programme provides training for indigenous representatives in conflict analysis, negotiation and conflict transformation, coupled with information on UN and regional human rights mechanisms to further the promotion and protection of their rights, and to help contribute to the realization of the implementation of the UN Declaration.

As marginalization from political and economic processes, and conflict over land and resource issues are two of the most challenging areas indigenous peoples continue to face, the majority of cases and negotiation simulations focus on these. The programme reviews both rights-based and problem solving negotiation processes to strengthen indigenous capacities to analyze root causes of conflict, and engage in negotiation and dialogue with governments, the private sector and other communities to address priorities and resolve conflict in a mutually-beneficial, sustainable manner.

The training programme invites UN Special Rapporteurs and Permanent Forum Members and other senior indigenous experts to conduct sessions on successful negotiation on land and resource issues and on political participation. Initiatives to facilitate dialogue between indigenous representatives, governments and the private sector are also highlighted. Staff of the World Bank and ILO also regularly contribute to the programme.

UNITAR actively seeks the participation and contribution of indigenous women both as resource persons and participants. Women compose over 40% of participants. Some of the senior indigenous women who have taught in programmes at the regional or international level include UN Permanent Forum Members and Chairs, Ministers, and Parliamentarians. Female participants have included a Paramount Chief, an Attorney-General and a Traditional Chief from the Pacific, Presidents of Provincial and National Women's Councils in Africa, the Americas and the Pacific, advisors and other leaders and practitioners, advocates, managers, and community workers from around the world.

The UN Special Rapporteur, Professor James Anaya, who has contributed to 12 of the 13 UNITAR training programmes at both the international and regional levels, before his nomination, has also engaged in important dialogue sessions during recent programmes. We also appreciated the important contribution of Ms. Megan Davis as Permanent Forum Member-elect to the 2011 international training programme. This was of special significance as she was a graduate of the first UNITAR training programme in 2000.

We are grateful to the Governments of Canada, Finland and Sweden for making the 2010 international training programme for 31 indigenous representatives from every region possible.

Four hundred and five representatives from around the world have been trained to date. Five alumni of the UNITAR training programme have served or been nominated as expert Members of the Permanent Forum including three currently serving members, and one alumna serves as a Member of the UN Expert Mechanism. Eleven graduates have served as resource persons. Alumni worked at the national, regional and international levels towards the adoption of the UN Declaration and continue to work at multiple levels to communicate needs, and concerns and to engage in dialogue with partners to forge mutually-beneficial solutions to challenges.

Funding support is being sought to organize the 2011 international training programme for indigenous representatives from around the world in Geneva at the time of the UN Expert Mechanism on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. We would like to express our appreciation to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of Finland which has already confirmed its support towards that annual international training programme to strengthen indigenous capacities for the promotion of rights and sustainable peace.

UNITAR has contributed to the Inter-Agency Support Group and Permanent Forum from the beginning, as well as UN efforts to promote the increased effective involvement of indigenous peoples in decision-making, promotion and protection of rights, and development processes at multiple levels. We look forward to continuing to work with the Permanent Forum and other indigenous experts and partners to help contribute to the realization of peace, dignity and well-being for the indigenous peoples of the world. Thank you.
